MORRIS COLLEGE
SUMTER, SOUTH CAROLINA

DR. LUNS C. RICHARDSON, PRESIDENT

"ENTER TO LEARN, DEPART TO SERVE"

The feeling of togetherness prevailed from the first beautiful fall days of 1989-90 when eager-eyed freshmen and returning students registered for classes until May 13 when seniors clutched their hard earned diplomas.

In every capacity, the Morris College family demonstrated a sense of closeness and caring. Together the Morris College family faced diverse experiences that sometimes edified and other times terrified and devastated as was the onslaught and the aftermath of Hurricane Hugo. With undaunted courage and preseverence, under the superb leadership of President Luns C. Richardson, the Morris College family continued their pursuit of academics.

As the seniors left the family circle when they passed the podium on the stage of the Exhibition Center, they left with a wonderful gift, the knowledge and appreciation that there is strength in pursuing academics.

They were reminded they had entered to learn and their togetherness in the pursuit of excellence earned them the right to depart to serve.

PRESIDENT'S LETTER TO THE STUDENT BODY FOR THE 1989-1990 YEARBOOK

Dear Students:

Many of us will remember the 1989-1990 academic year at Morris College for the rest of our lives because within one month after the opening of the academic year, both Morris College and the State of South Carolina were struck by the most devastating hurricane in American history. The college suffered a substantial amount of damage from the storm that forced it to close for two weeks, and it is understandable that many of us who were here will never forget the experience. However, as the months since the storm have passed, an even more significant remembrance of Morris College during the 1989-1990 academic year has come into focus that I will carry with me for the rest of my life. It is the remembrance of the hundreds of students who returned enthusiastically to the campus two weeks after the storm to continue their basic task of learning. This was not an easy task since some students had to relocate to other campus housing, some classes had to be moved to other locations, and some faculty had to be shifted to other offices. In addition, a number of students had suffered the loss of much of their clothing and other personal possessions on the campus while also suffering additional losses of property in their home communities.

There were some people throughout the state who predicted that the college would not be able to resume operations following the storm and that the entire fall semester, if not the entire academic year, would be lost. That this prediction turned out to be entirely wrong is very much a result of the tremendous spirit of cooperation that you, the student body, brought back to the campus after the storm and the tremendous enthusiasm with which you resumed your activities on the campus. As President of the college, it was my responsibility to rebuild the physical damage that was left over from the storm. However, only you the students could rebuild the spirit that is necessary to make the college function successfully, and I congratulate you for this outstanding accomplishment.

It is not in my nature to dwell at great length on things that are negative, but I always try to see the positive side of things. Thus in the future, I will probably not give a great deal of thought to the devastation that Morris College suffered as a result of Hurricane Hugo. However, I will always have a special remembrance for the students who were at Morris College during the historic 1989-1990 academic year.

Sincerely,

Luns C. Richardson
President

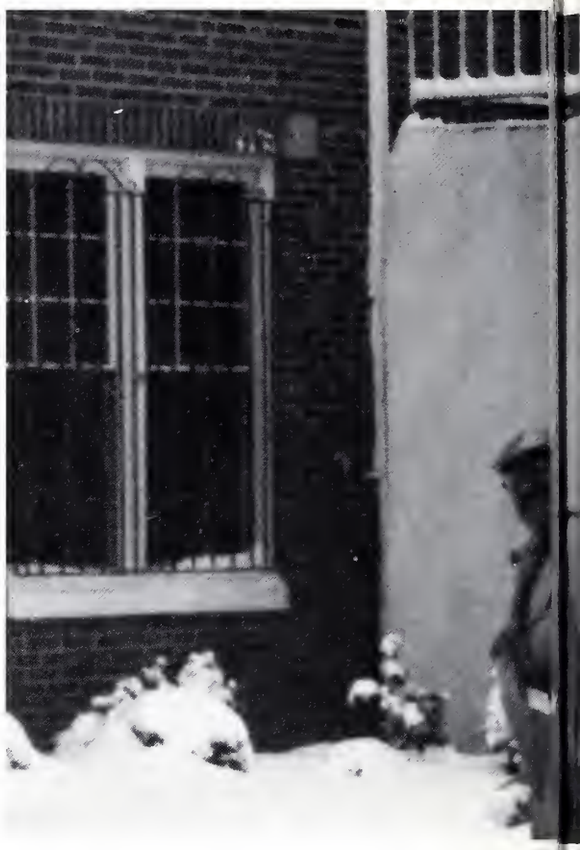
SNOW



Students had gone home for their Christmas vacation. Suddenly without warning the snow began to fall leaving behind a beautiful winter wonderland.

Dr. Isaiah Harvey and Rev. Marion Newton challenged Mr. Roy Graham to a snow battle. Seeing pictures of nature's touch of beauty on the campus, Gregory Boozer said disappointedly, "Missed fun! Teachers are out there playing in the snow."

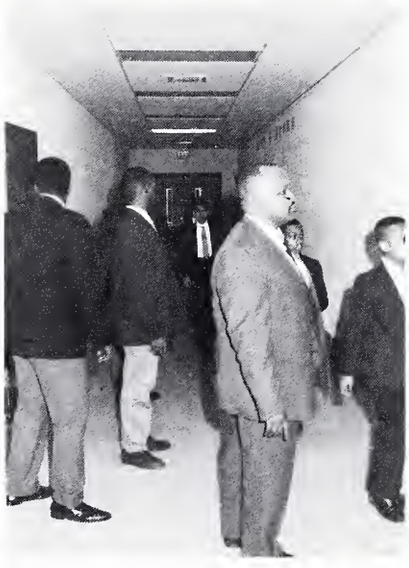
EVENINGS TO



Sixty young men ranging from the ages of eight to eighteen from New York City's five boroughs delighted the audience to an unforgettable evening of music. Their repertoire included sacred, gospel, secular and contemporary music.

The Reverend Gregory Anton McCants, the founder of the New York Boys Choir, stated that the choir rehearses after school and on Saturdays and must maintain a "B" average to perform.

The highlights of the past season included performances at the Republican National Convention, Disney World, The White House, and the United Nations.

The deputy director/conductor is Larry Matthews, instructor at East Harlem Performing Arts School as well as the Harbor School for Performing Arts. Kenneth Scarborough, a native South Carolinian, is business manager.

REMEMBER

UPWARD BOUNDERS

Fifty ninth, tenth, and eleventh graders from Sumter, Lee and Clarendon counties are in a week end and summer pre-college program directed by Mrs. Ruth Baker. The teachers of this Upward Bound program are Mrs. Mary Jackson, English; Mrs. Mae Meggie, reading; Mr. Thomas Williams, math; and Mrs. Omega Golden, science. Mrs. Marian Jeter is counselor. Mrs. Betty Washington is secretary.

Gerald Bauldock Shares His Story

Gerald Bauldock, author of "Reaching for the Moon," his autobiography, and business executive, shared his vision of a better life. From one of his original poems he quoted, "The purpose of life and living, Is the fulfillment . . . of a dream!"

WFIG (World Famous Iris Garden)

Morris given WFIG

By BILLY QUARLES
ITEM Staff Writer

Gamecock City Broadcasting Inc., the Sumter-based firm that owns WWDM-FM announced today that it will give its AM radio station, WFIG, to Sumter's Morris College.

Effective today, WFIG, 1290 on the AM radio dial, will become WWDM-AM and will simulcast with WWDM-FM until the Federal Communications Commission approves the transfer. Morris College is expected to begin operating the station in October.

Sumter's oldest radio station, WFIG was founded in 1940 by the late T. Douglas Youngblood for using the station to promote Sumter, particularly the Iris Festival.

In fact, the station's call letters stand for World Famous Iris Gardens. Youngblood also persuaded Mutual Broadcasting personalities such as Cedric Foster and Bill Cunningham to anchor their shows at WFIG during festivals each year.

John Marshall, president of Gamecock City Broadcasting, said the station had an appraised value of $125,000. The company had to rid itself of the station, he said, but it did not want to invest time in seeking a buyer. Hence the transfer.

"It's no secret that AM radio doesn't have the audience it had in the '60s," Marshall said. "(WFIG) is no longer a profitable activity, but it's a great educational tool.

"We did look into selling it. But it would have taken a good while to sell it, and we thought it would be better to turn it over to Morris College. We do have a commitment to the black community."

Marshall said he also thought of permanently simulcasting WFIG with his company's FM station, which broadcasts a black contemporary format.

"We could have done that, but it would have been a waste of the frequency," Marshall said. "We'd be sitting on something that Morris College could use in its media program."

Gamecock City Broadcasting in the past has worked closely with the media program at Morris College, which has an enrollment of approximately 850. The company has contributed equipment to the school, maintained an internship program with Morris and aired a regular 30-minute public affairs program called "The Morris College Experience."

According to Janet Clayton, director of Morris College's media department, the school plans to broadcast religious and educational programs, assemblies, community affairs discussions, news, athletic events and other programs of interest to the community. The station's call letters.

Morris College students currently operate a closed-circuit radio station, WMCC, but the signal cannot be received off campus. The 1,000-watt WFIG frequency will allow the school to broadcast over most of Sumter County.

The full-time WFIG staff, consisting of a pair of employees, will be laid off as a result of the transfer. But both will receive severance and bonus pay and assistance from Gamecock City in finding employment.

Marshall said Morris College officials have been excited about owning the station since they were contacted about two months ago. College President Dr. Luns Richardson agreed.

"Morris College is extremely pleased to receive this gift," Richardson said. "It will benefit the students, the college and the Sumter County community for years to come. The station will provide students with the hands-on experience needed to make the transition to the real world of broadcast media."

Grand opening planned for WQMC

The grand opening for Morris College's commercial radio station, WQMC 1290 AM, will be held on campus Monday, Jan. 15. Air time for the station is 6 a.m. to 10 p.m.

According to Janet Clayton, director of Media Services, Morris will broadcast religious and educational programs, assemblies, community affairs discussions, news, athletic events and other programs of interest to the community.

Three persons have been appointed to work at the station. They are Samuel Lewis Jr., program director, Darryl R. Brooks, chief announcer, and Jeffrey Cain, media operations and production assistant. Students will also intern at the station.

Lewis comes to the station with 12 years of radio experience. He has served as a program director, music director, production director, public service director and announcer. He holds an associate degree in business management from Sumter Area Technical College and the Certificates of Completion in Radion Broadcasting from Sumter Tech and Carolina School of Broadcasting, Charlotte, N.C.

Brooks received a B.S. degree in communications from West Virginia State College. He comes to the college from a radio station in Georgia where he served as station manager and account executive. He also has experience as a productions manager and announcer.

Cain is a 1989 Morris College graduate. His experience includes serving as music director of WMCC, the campus radio station and photographer for the college's Media Center.

When asked about students participation at the radio station, President Richardson said, "The station will provide students with hands-on experience needed to make the transition to the real world of broadcast media."

Sincerely,
John D. Marshall, President

Morris College Becomes Only Third Black College To Get Commercial Station In Country

Morris College in Sumter, South Carolina has a new radio station, WQMC-AM (1290 K.C). It becomes only the third black college operating a commercial radio station. The other two are Howard University and St. Augustine's College. St. Augustine's radio station, however, is the only one that was built from the ground up. The other two were donated to the college.

Officials of Morris College said WQMC will be on the air from 6:00 a.m. until 10:00 p.m. and will broadcast religious and educational programs, assemblies, community affairs discussions, news, athletic events and other programs of interest to the community.

According to Ms. Janet Clayton, director of Media Services for the College, three persons have been appointed to work at the station. They are Samuel Lewis, Jr., program director, Darryl R. Brooks, chief announcer, and Jeffery Cain, media operations and production assistant.

Mr. Lewis comes to the station with twelve years of radio experience. He has served as a program director, music director, production director, public service director and announcer. He holds the associate degree in Business Management from Sumter Area Technical College and the Certificates of Completion in Radio Broadcasting from Sumter Tech and Carolina School of Broadcasting, Charlotte, North Carolina.

Mr. Brookes received the B.S. degree in Communications from West Virginia State College. He comes to the college from a radio station in Georgia where he served as Station Manager and Account Executive. He also has experience as a productions manager and announcer.

Mr. Cain is a 1989 Morris College graduate. His experience includes serving as music director of WMCC, the campus radio station and photographer for the college's Media Center.

The station was given to Morris College by the Gamecock City Broadcasting Company and will give studeots hand-on experience needed to make the transiiloo to the real world of broadcast media, the president of the College said.

BIG BUSINESS COMES

TO COLLEGE

From as far North as Massachusetts and west as Texas, thirteen executives came to assist in preparing students for successful transition into business and professional careers.

"College Graduates in the Labor Market: Today and the Future" was the theme for this twenty-second Annual Career Awareness and Planning Seminar. These executives from the corporate world served as visiting professors. They conducted classroom presentations, workshops, and residence halls discussions.

The Black Executive Exchange Program (BEEP Program) is under the direction of the National Urban League. Dr. Renee DuJean is the director. The Division of Business Administration and the Office of Career Planning, Cooperative Education and Placement were the campus sponsorers.

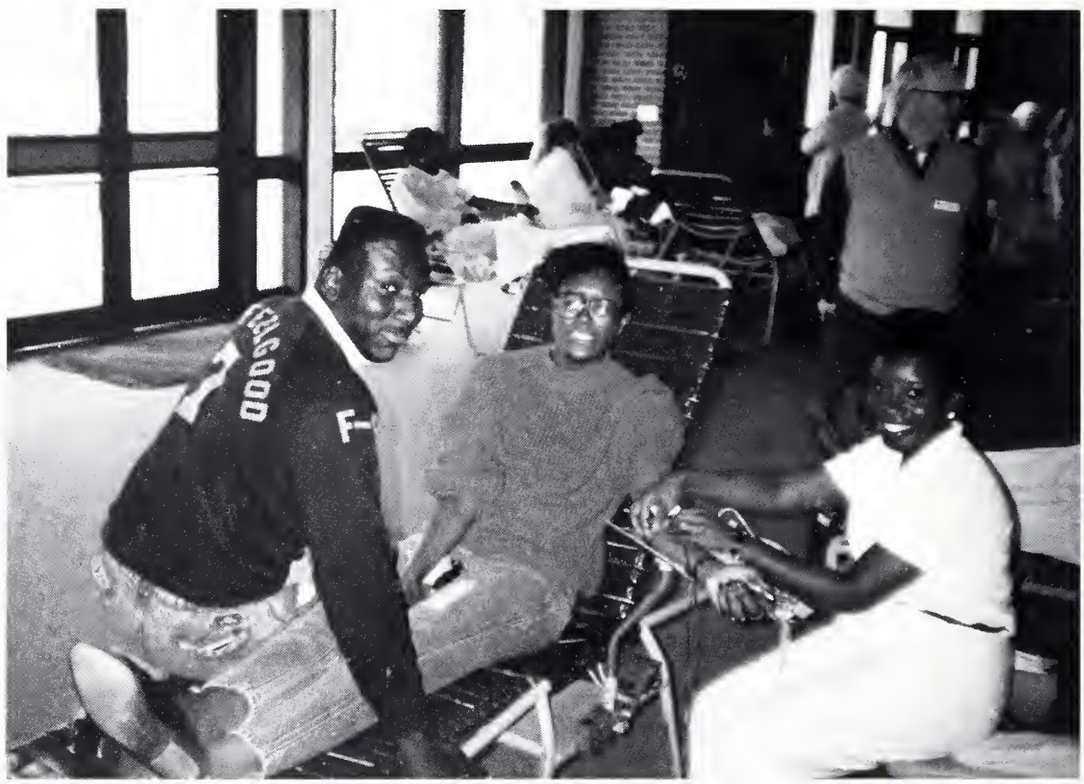
The Blood Drive

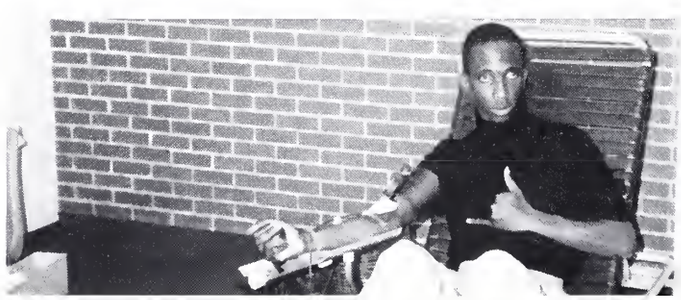
The Xi Epsilon Chapter of the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity and the American Red Cross sponsored the 10th Annual Blood Drive from 9:00 a.m. — 3:00 p.m. on January 24, 1990, in the lobby of the Neal-Jones Auditorium.

The overall turnout of the student body was very good. Ninety-one pints of blood were donated.

The Alphas reached a new milestone with a total of more than 800 pints donated over an eleven year period.

Timothy Motgomery, president of the chapter, expressed his gratitude. He said. "We are most fortunate and highly appreciative of those concerned students who participated in the drive. Their contribution makes the difference in saving lives".





Scholar Bowl Contest

Mr. Junius Dowell

The Division of General Studies presented a Scholar's Bowl Contest on Thursday, April 5, 1990 — 10:00 a.m., in the Neal-Jones Auditorium. The bowl was won by the blue team.

The contest was between two intellectually competitive teams answering questions from all subjects including literature, biology, mathematics, philosophy, art and information about the college.

The victorious blue team members were Marie Rogers, captain, Eric Hamilton, Jessie Turner, Rodney Beache. The blue alternates were Shirley Edmonds and Patina Barnes.

The gold team members were Andre Lassiter, captain, Tammi Blakney, Nicole Sims and Shannon Linton. The gold alternates were Raquel Huggins and Marcellis Hales.

Mr. Junius Dowell presided and Dr. Gregory Zagursky moderated. Division Chairperson Mrs. Margaret Davis stated the purpose. Both President, Dr. Luns C. Richardson and Academic Dean Dr. Mary Vereen-Gordon expressed their support and appreciation.

THANKSGIVING

Traditionally, Thanksgiving Day is a day of jubilation and togetherness. The Morris College family — students, alumni, friends and supporters, gather from far and near to bring their gifts, greet old and new friends, enjoy a colorful parade and feast on a delicious turkey dinner with all the trimmings.

Exhibition Center was filled with enthusiastic and attentive audience and excitement on Thursday, November 23, 1989.

The speaker of the hour was Dr. Benjamin James Whipper, Sr., pastor of the St. Matthew Baptist Church of Charleston and the Liberty Hill Baptist Church of North Charleston. He is treasurer of the Baptist Educational and Missionary Convention and the National Baptist Convention. As a radio teacher, he is heard weekly explaining the Sunday School lesson.

DAY RALLY

Dr. S. C. Cureton records as Dr. Wescott Johnson and President Richardson listen eagerly to the rally reports.

Dr. Ed. F. Johnson

Dr. W. E. Givens

Dr. Ed. F. Johnson and Dr. W. E. Givens, drive directors, received reports from other groups particularly the Baptist Auxiliaries. Reporting for these groups were Dr. Mamie N. Coker, president of the Woman's State Convention; Mrs. Daisy Alexander, president of the Ushers' Convention; Dr. J. H. Corbitt, president of the Congress of Christian Education; Mrs. Lillie Tate, president of the YWA; Mr. Raymond Robinson, president of the Brotherhood and Mr. Algie Dial, Jr., president of the Musical Convention.

Besides their gifts, the students were well represented. Ms. Gale P. Ragin "Miss Morris College" presented a "Historical Sketch of Morris College"; Mr. Derrick Hayes, president of the Student Government Association, brought greetings. Both the Chorale and the Gospel Choir rendered music.

Other participants on the program included Dr. Wescott Johnson, chairman, Board of Trustees, Rev. Ernest M. Gordon, Rev. Malachi C. Duncan, Rev. J. W. Henderson and Rev. Alvin C. Robinson, moderators and pastors.

Supporters from the state and local community as well as national organizations were well represented in the Thanksgiving Day Rallyings.

Miss Morris College
Ms. Gale P. Ragin, beautiful, scholarly, talented, articulate, humble possessing all the qualities that the college appreciates in its young women . . . " Those were the words of Dr. Luns C. Richardson, President of Morris College, in his description of Miss Morris College 1989-90, Ms. Gale P. Ragin.

Who is she? Ms. Gale P. Ragin is the 21 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ragin of Sumter. She has a sister and a brother. Gale is a member of Mulberry Baptist Church.

Born under the sign of Sagitarrius, Ms. Ragin is a 1986 graduate of Sumter High School. During her high school years, she was active in various organizations. She was captain of the Cheerleaders Squad, member of the concert and show choirs, 1985-86 All State Choir, Madgricals, Talented and Gifted Program (TAG) and also reigned as Miss Freshman and Homecoming Queen.

A senior majoring in Political Science/History, her honors and memberships include Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society, Dean's List, President's List, O.R. Reuben Scholar, Reinforcers, Achievers and Representatives of Excellence (RARE), Who's Who, Morris College Scholars, NAACP, and Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Incorporated.

Ms. Ragin's hobbies include singing, dancing, reading poetry and taking long walks.

After graduating from Morris College, Gale plans to attend law school.

President Richardson said, "Ms. Ragin is the epitome of the young Morris College woman and I congratulate the student body for electing her to represent them."

In a heartwarming speech, Ms. Ragin thanked Dr. Richardson for his consideration, kindness and support, and for taking her under his wings and making Morris College her "home away from home". Ragin said, "I thank the student body for believing in me enough to make me a representation of your character, and I promise to represent you to the best of my ability."

To her parents, Ragin said she searched and searched for the words that would help her describe her love for them. She thanked them for their love, support, encouragement, hope and, most of all, a home.

JUNIORS
HEADING FOR THE TOP

Traci Singleton is the class president.

Don't lose your way with each passing day,
You've come so far, don't throw it away.
Keep believing, only dreaming is for weaklings;
Wonders are waiting to start.
Build your story on faith, hope and Glory.
These are the keys to your heart.

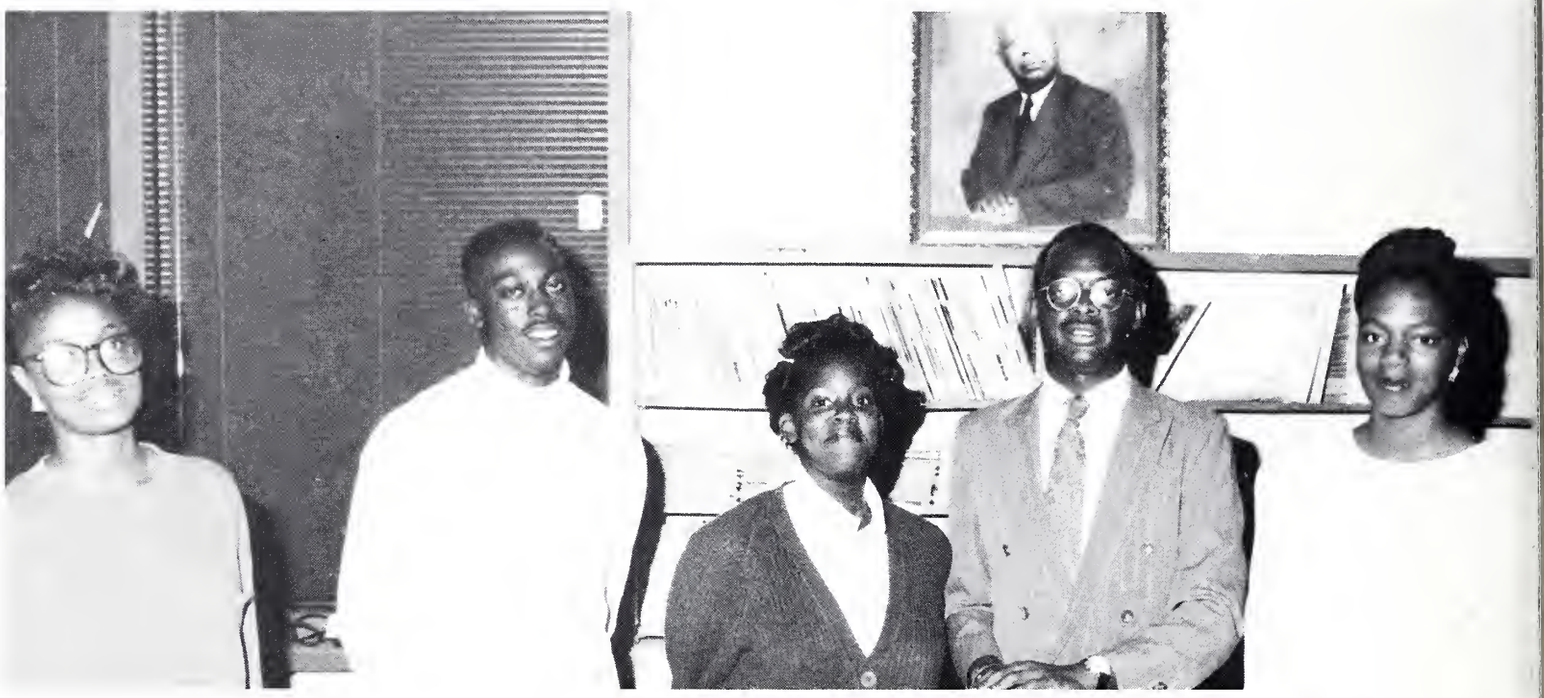
HEADING FOR THE TOP



Freshman Class Officers
CONCEIVE SUCCESS, ACHIEVE SUCCESS!

Approximately 25 artistically gifted and talented freshmen exhibited their creativity in speech, drama, singing, music and writing in an outstanding program, "The Extravaganza".

The gifted scholars of the class exercised their intellectual and scholastical abilities in a Scholar's Bowl. Also, members of the class became chartered participants in the first MORRIS COLLEGE ALL-STAR CHALLENGE.

To show their appreciation to the faculty and staff for the support given so generously to them, the class presented a Faculty/Staff Appreciation Program and honored the faculty and staff with a fashion show as entertainment and certificates of appreciation.

Indeed the 1989-90 freshman class endeavored to achieve and to please.

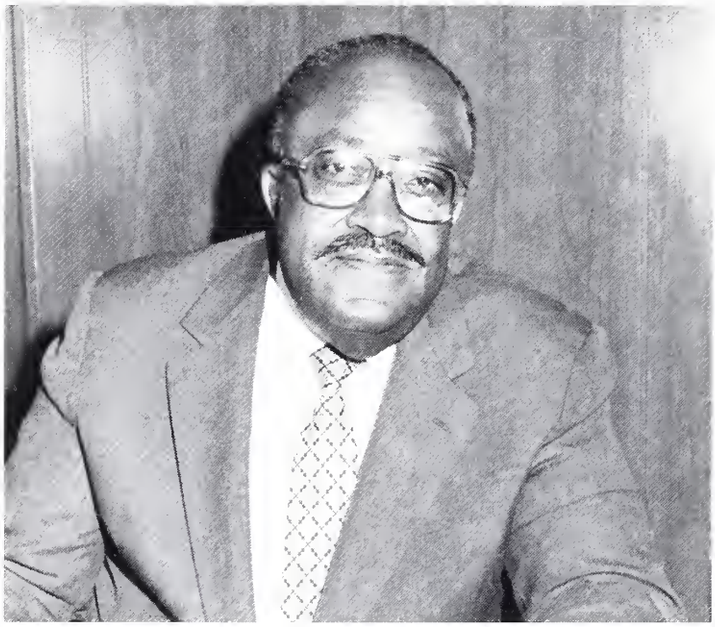
MORRIS COLLEGE

The Morris College School of Religion operates on the basic philosophy that clergy and laity must be trained to serve the needs of contemporary American society.

In its endeavor to implement the school's purpose and philosophy, programs have been designed to afford students the necessary discipline to prepare them for the ministry.



The Reverend Doctor Isaiah Harvey
Dean, School of Religion

Doctor Latta Thomas
Instructor, School of Religion

The School of Religion presents two distinct programs. A degree program is offered on the campus structured to meet the needs of ministers and Christian workers desiring to pursue a Bachelor of Theology or Bachelor of Divinity degree.

Also the Morris College School of Religion operates fourteen extension centers around the state of South Carolina. Ministers and Christian workers are taught in the certificate program. After the successful completion of 540 clock hours, a ministerial certificate is awarded to the recepient at the closing convocation of the School of Religion.

The Bachelor of Theology or Bachelor of Divinity degree is conferred upon the recepient during the Annual May Commencement.

ROTC

Cadets presented gifts of remembrance to Staff Sergeant Rosie Pruitt affectionately known as "Mom Hornet". SSG. Pruitt was transferred to overseas duty. Ms. Parrots looks on.

(TL) Vanessa Franklin and Derrell Kelly presented a card to SSG. Pruitt signed by the eighty-seven cadets in the company.

(BR) Tony Littles presented a plush stuffed puppy.

(BL) Timothy Montgomery, the company commander, presented a silver and pearl hornet.

(L) Derrick Hayes smiled because he could not think of anything good to say about SSG Pruitt.

(B) Ms. Parrot told the good, the bad, and the UGLY.

The Hornet Company expressed its appreciation to SGM Marshall. The company welcomed to its ranks SGM Green and SSG Williams. "WELCOME!"

HORNET COMPANY CELEBRATED

FIFTH ANNUAL MILITARY BALL

All Army ROTC Units conduct a Military Ball each year as a part of their training program. The Military Ball prepares cadets for the military social life that they will soon experience as officers in the United States Army. It also gives the senior cadets an opportunity to plan, organize, finance and conduct a formal military social event. This year's Military Ball was celebrated at the Officers Club of Shaw Air Force Base.

The freshman cadets formed an honorguard to honor seniors receiving their commissions in May 1990. Cadet Major Frederick Freeman is accompanied by Miss Karen Dixon.

Major Fowler presented a plaque and thanks to the top male (Dexter Canty) and top female (Dorothy Singleton) for selling the most tickets to finance the Military Ball. Both were successful in selling more than one hundred tickets.

MORRIS COLLEGE CADETS

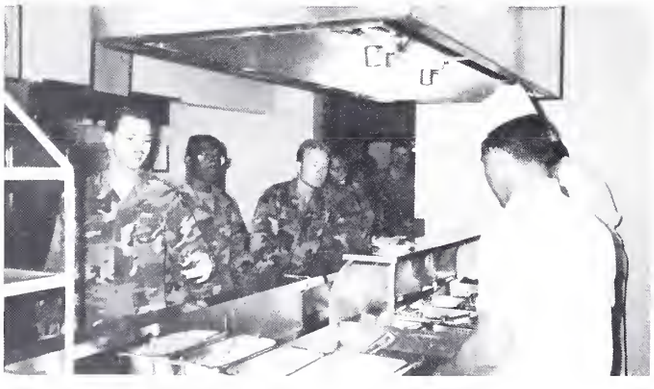
Cadets Cynthia Heyward and Angela Scott adhere to the old adage that "two heads are better than one" while they are on the land navigation course.

Cadets stand in line at chow time.

Field training exercise include land navigation, victory tower, basic rifle marksmanship, individual tactical training, squad tactics, small unit patrolling, platoon tactics and leadership reaction course. The exercises start with basic skills and progress toward the more advanced technical skills that cadets need in order to be successful at ROTC advance camp.



It's chow time at Fort Bragg!

PREPARATION FOR COMMISSIONING

The United States Reserve Officers' Training Corps (ROTC) offers college students the opportunity to be commissioned Second Lieutenants in the United States Army upon earning a bachelor's degree and the completion of the Army ROTC Program. Under this system, commissions are awarded in the various branches of the Army taking into consideration the cadet's preference, qualifications and the needs of the service.

Military Science III (Juniors) requires that cadets attend ROTC advance camp for six weeks during the summer prior to their senior year. Advance Camp tests all the skill covered in ROTC. Cadets compete with all other cadets on the East Coast. Every ROTC training event focuses on the skills necessary to make cadets successful at Advance Camp. Morris College cadets go to Fort Bragg, North Carolina in the spring of each year for their training in an Advance Camp requirement.

ADMINISTRATORS

STAFF

HATS OFF!

The 1989-90 administrators, faculty and staff faced a herculean task successfully together. The school year was off to an excellent start. Every available space on the campus seemingly was filled to capacity with students "eager to learn". Then came hurricane Hugo sweeping through the campus like uncontrolled demons from utter darkness tearing asunder buildings, uprooting trees, knocking down walls, scattering huge piles of debris all over the campus. In the residential halls during the horrifying night, residence directors, security guards and others toiled untiringly and prayerfully to calm the fears of frightened students.

When the winds tied down and morning came, the campus was left in disarray. Four roofs were badly damaged. The gym was structurally damaged. Crumbling walls in Legare Hall and the Academic Building incapacitated the use of the buildings. Water soaked many buildings. Ironically in all Sumter there was no water to drink and no electricity for a few days.

While the buildings and their contents were still dripping, their walls were cold and damp and rugs on the floor soaked and soggy, President Richardson sounded a clarion call to his staff. "The academic year must be saved!" In the midst of their own destruction and plight, the staff returned to the task of rebuilding. They, too, had felt the devastating effects of Hugo. Their homes had been ripped and torn asunder. Three homes were completely demolished.

President Richardson's goal that Morris College would be opened for classes by October 9 seemed like an impossible dream. Skilled and unskilled workers joined by a few Morris College students answered the summons to restore the damages inflicted by Hugo. Daily, meetings were held, plans were made and carried out. After the second day, electricity was restored. Water, however, was slow coming. A curfew imposed by the city added to the bleakness of the nights.

Hearing the news of Hugo's visit to the campus, friends responded from far and near and sent and brought gifts of clothing, sheets, blankets, and other items to replace those destroyed by the hurricane. Most of all the outpouring of love, caring, concern and sharing raised the courageous and undaunted spirits of the fearless President and his staff.

October 9 came. The deadline was met! The students returned to cramped and crowded living quarters with few complaints if any. Twenty female students were housed in the President's home, while he resided in a local hotel. The offices of many faculty and staff members were moved to trailers. The rebuilding, cleaning and clearing away debris continued as rescheduled and relocated classes resumed. Make up days were instituted. The semester was saved!

Together administrators, faculty, staff, students and friends faced a terrible disaster, Hurricane Hugo and its aftermath, with a grateful "Thank God for sparing our lives!"

Legare Hall and Daniels Hall respectively

In every crisis, there are unsung heroes and heroines. For Hurricane Hugo, there was no different. At Legare hall, as the storm damaged the building, especially the second and third floors, stalwart Mrs. Agnes Gregg gathered the ladies of Legare as a hen gathers her chicks. Sustained by her own unfaltering trust in God, she consoled, counseled and prayed with them as the storm was passing over. After the storm died down, many could not return to their rooms. Mrs. Gregg continued to provide confort all during the night.

The process of laundering, taking clothes to the cleaners, identification and reclamation of possessions was laborious, long and tedious. Together Dean Eliza E. Black and she labored to the satisfaction of each resident.

Mrs. Gregg remained at Legare all during its restoration and assisted the young ladies in their gradual reoccupation of the building.

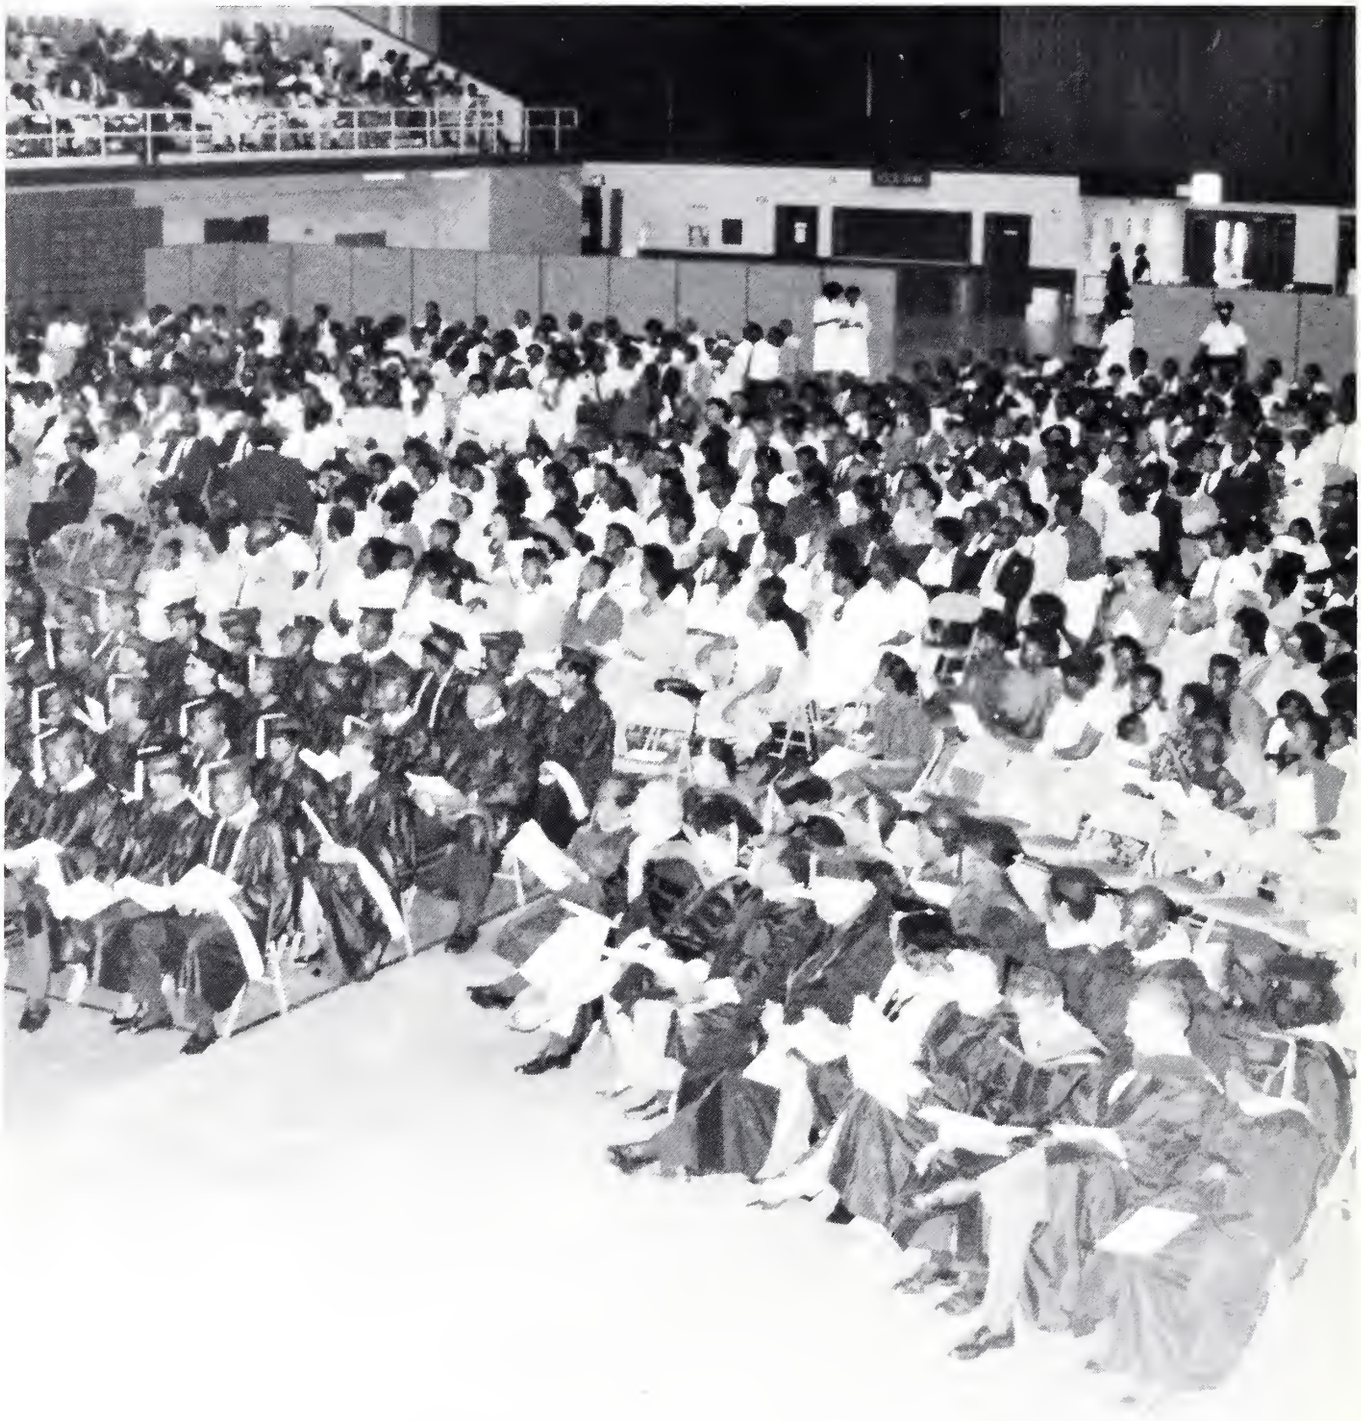
GRADUATION DAY!



Sunday, May 13, 1990

MORRIS GRADUATES 112

On Sunday, May 13, 1990, in what will be a long-remembered ceremony, Morris College graduated 112 students. The College, founded in 1908 and owned and operated by the Baptist E & M Convention of South Carolina, had Attorney Patricia Russell-McCloud, professional orator, to address graduates, family and friends.

Aside from the emotions that normally accompany an occasion and are felt by graduates, faculty, and staff as well as family and friends, everyone present was held captive by the content and style of Russell-McCloud's address as she spoke on the topic, "Seize the Day".

A total of 53 students received B.A. degrees; 10 B.F.A. degrees; 42 B.S. degrees; 7 B.S. in Education; one B.D. degree and 3 B.Th. degrees. The top student in the class of 1990 is Zyretta P. McBeth, an Elementary Education major from Eastover, South Carolina, McBeth graduated with a 3.85 average on a 4.00 scale. The student with the second highest GPA is Eugene Commander. He graduated with a 3.76 average. A Political Science/History major, Commander is a native of Lynchburg, South Carolina.

The Morris College School of Religion graduated four students: one with the Bachelor of Divinity Degree and three others the Bachelor of Theology degrees.

Several additional honors were given to persons who had over the years rendered outstanding services to Morris College and the community. Honorary doctorates were awarded to Rev. Dan R. Bodison, Doctor of Divinity; Rev. Mack T. Hines, Doctor of Divinity and Dr. William Rivers, Doctor of Laws.

Twelve persons received Presidential Citiations in recognition and appreciation for continuous service to the College and the education community. Citation recipients were: Leroy McLain, Sarah B. Mathis, H.J. Brooks, William Dyson, Hazel H. Willis and Sam E. Betterson. Also, Henry McGill, A. Eugene Reeder, Billie S. Fleming, James E. Byrd, W. Leroy & Lola Myers and John Marshall.
